

The very first oven was invented by Ancient people and it was just an open fire like we use when we go camping. Later in the middle age they started using chimney like things to cook.

Next Iron stoves were invented and they had one fire spot inside and on top you could cook with more than one pot at a time.

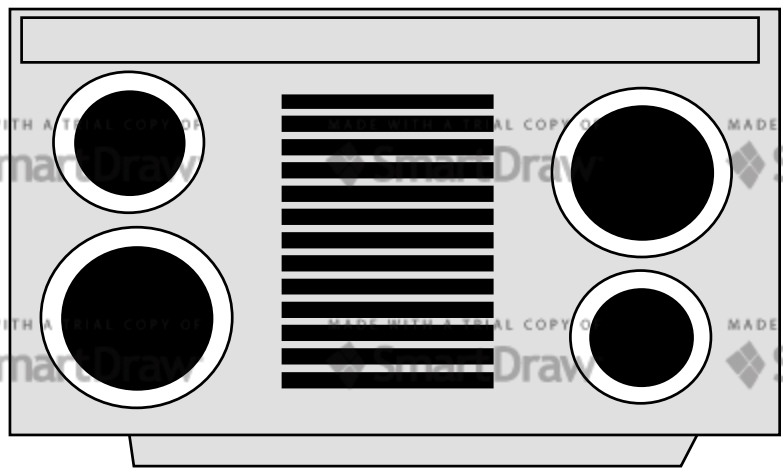

In about the middle of the 1900 the microwaves were finally here.

Later on there was a new technology and it was a fire chamber that you would put wood inside and put flat pots on top. That later revolved into a Castrol stove.

Finally electric stoves were invented in the 1900 but most of them still needed many improvements
